Numonics Corporation Announces Distribution Agreement With Encyclopaedia Britannica

MONTGOMERYVILLE, PA –Numonics Corporation has reached an agreement with Encyclopaedia Britannica to distribute a copy of their Ultimate Reference Suite 2007 DVD with every Intelliboard interactive whiteboard.

The Ultimate Reference Suite is a comprehensive reference tool, comprising over 100,000 articles spanning all 32-volumes of the Encyclopaedia Britannica print edition, as well as extras such as World Atlas, Timelines, Homework Helpdesk, multimedia library and a year's worth of free updates.

“We are thrilled to offer this world-renowned program to our customers,” said Numonics President & CEO, Alfred N. Basilicato. “Numonics strives not only to offer the most advanced interactive technology but also to support that technology with the most comprehensive software available. Encyclopaedia Britannica’s Ultimate Reference Suite DVD is a revolutionary digital reference tool and a valuable addition to our software library.”

“This partnership will make our reference and educational resources readily available when and where teachers and student need them – in the classroom,” said Michael Ross, senior vice president with Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Under the agreement, one copy of the DVD will be distributed with every Numonics Intelliboard. In addition, customers will receive a 60-day free trial subscription for the Encyclopaedia Britannica Online School Edition, an online database that provides a comprehensive suite of reference sources, custom learning materials for lesson plan development and other resources for students and teachers. Both products complement an already strong library of Numonics software giving teachers more tools to enhance their interactive whiteboard.

Numonics Educational Associate Bill McIntosh praised the offer. “While many, if not most classrooms have internet connections, those can be tenuous, and the inclusion of the Encyclopaedia Britannica with the Intelliboard gives teachers a wealth on information that is only a “pen tap” away,” said McIntosh. “The educational resources are staggering yet easy to access and use to create dynamic lesson plans. Numonics continues to demonstrate leadership in providing greater value to schools with their products.”

Numonics Corporation is an ISO 9001 certified company with 30 plus years of design, development and manufacturing experience and is a technology innovator for interactive presentation products for education. Numonics introduced the first pen-centric interactive whiteboard in 1994 and led the way in alternatives to touch board technology.
